Leadership

Shing Chow

Founder and Chief Executive Officer

Lalamove's founder and CEO graduated with honors from the Department of Economics at Stanford University and started his career at Bain & Company, a leading management consultancy. Shing started his journey as a professional Texas hold 'em player in 2003 and mastered the game through his logical skills and lots of practise. However, Shing soon came to realise that Texas hold 'em was a zero-sum game, and he wanted to do something that would create value for society. As the sharing economy and wave of mobile Internet start-ups were taking off, Shing established Lalamove in 2013.

Blake Larson

Managing Director, International

Blake has spent his career finding companies, leading teams and overseeing operations during periods of exponential growth for both Fortune 500 companies and tech start-ups across four continents. Previously, Blake has taken on strategic, senior executive and founding roles at Rocket Internet's Easy Taxi, Air Crew Club, the Clinton Foundation and Walgreens. Blake is also a proud alumnus of ESADE Business School, the National University of Singapore where he did his MBA, and the University of Iowa where he graduated with a BBA in Finance and Marketing.
